"For the earnest expectation of the creature waits for the manifestation of the sons of God"

School of Missions: Class of 2011

FIRST DAYS:

12 LATIN-AMERICAN CITIES

In the class of 2011 we have 15 students, representing 13 churches of 12 different cities. We have the joy of having a student from Serra, Espírito Santo, who was impacted with the missionary work of the 2010 team, as well as a girl from Santiago, Chile, who was touched because of the work of our missionaries. We know that their presence will be special. Almost every one of the other students have taken part on one of our Missionary Weeks and received the call from God there.

NEW CHALLENGES, NEW VICTORIES

Once more, I'm facing new challenges. In this class, we have only 3 guys! Thank God, my sister Mirian will be helping out together with me. I know it will be a time of growth.

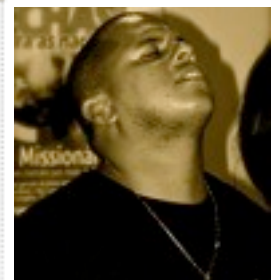

Besides that, I'll also be teaching Spanish, together with Macarena, our student from Chile. Since I've never had Spanish classes and have only learned by talking and interaction with friends in different places, I never learned to much grammar. I've been learning as I teach - and maybe this is the best way to learn something - why not? ⇒)

We're still getting used to the new reality, but the first days have been amazing!

A SEASON OF ADAPTATIONS AND GROWTH

In these first days, the students have been working on getting adapted to the new reality - new schedule, new rules, time to study, books to read - besides getting used to being away from their families.

We've been visiting the local community, where we'll work every week visiting them and helping their families. This week we'll start working in the primary school, where we'll teach about biblical principles to the children.

We've also split them into groups, so that they can work on research projects and get better organized in the everyday routine.

To me, it's been a new experience, even though this is the second year of the school. We've structured the schedule, the classes and every aspect of the day more. Something new we'll have: every student will get to share a 10-minute message every day. It will be a blessing to see the growing in that area!

PROPHETIC CONFERENCE

Last week we had the more than blessed presence of ap. Erick Alpizar, from Costa Rica, who ministered in a Prophetic Conference at our church. Those were days of much blessing, teaching, anointing and outpouring of the Holy Spirit. The church was crowded in every message - the youth had to see at the floor. The students from the School of Missions were also there, to receive even more from God.

The conference brought a new personal challenge to me, since I had to interpret ap. Erick - from Spanish into Portuguese - in every messages. It was the first time I interpreted from Spanish - and his style of preaching is very dynamic and active - what made it even harder to do. But I believe that God was able to work through my life, so that everyone could receive all that He had for each of them.

TABERNÁCULOS BRASIL TRAINING CENTER

In the month of February I went with my dad to Nova Odessa, near the metropolitan region of São Paulo state, for a week ministering a class about missions at CTTB, Centro de Treinamento Tabernáculos Brasil (Tabernáculos Brasil Training Center), of ap. Dawidh Alves. Those were days of many blessings, when we were able to start new friendships, besides strengthening our relationship with them. It was really awesome! May God bless them and may many more lives be blessed there!

A season of adaptation, a prophetic conference, ministering about missions: 2011 has already started full of things to do, full of new experiences to go through and new challenges to face!

On more year has started, not only at the School of Missions, but also in my ministry. I know that God has many things prepared for us in 2011. May we fulfill his will and do even more for the Kingdom!

God bless you!
